

When printed, the Mark mask should measure 7" from edge to edge

THE MARK MASK

template at markgps.com

1 Start by turning a 100% cotton shirt inside out and tracing this pattern onto the fabric. Then flip the pattern over (this side down) and trace it again to create a mirror image. These will become the inside and outside of mask. Cut out both.

2 Pin the front edges of each cutout and sew a seam along both.

Open each panel along the seam and lay the panels against one another, finished sides together (The rough edges you just seamed will be facing out). Start pinning by matching the nose seams together. Then work your way from the nose to an ear, and then to the other. Repeat for the bottom. Be sure all fabric edges are lined up.

4 Turn the mask "right-side out" by pulling it through the ear opening like a inside out sock. This hides the seams inside the mask.

The last step is to roll the ear openings inside the mask and pin in place your 5" 1/2 elastic for the ear holds. You will then sew a seam along the outside of the mask to close the ear opening and secure the elastic. Before this step, put the mask against your face to see if the mask fits from nose to ear. You can adjust the fit by rolling in more or less fabric.

5

EAR

3b

bottom of mask

CHIN

3a

bottom of mask

CHIN

4

top of mask

NOSE

THE MARCO

template at markgps.com

1 Start by turning a 100% cotton shirt inside out and tracing this pattern onto the fabric. Then flip the pattern over (this side down) and trace it again to create a mirror image. These will become the inside and outside of mask. Cut out both.

2 Pin the front edges of each cutout and sew a seam along both.

The last step is to roll the ear openings inside the mask and pin in place your 5" 1/2 elastic for the ear holds. You will then sew a seam along the outside of the mask to close the ear opening and secure the elastic. Before this step, put the mask against your face to see if the mask fits from nose to ear. You can adjust the fit by rolling in more or less fabric.

2

1

front of mask

bennion deville HOMES
BRE# 01878977

DESERT REAL ESTATE, CA

Mark